

with the rapid increase in the number of clerks in all the departments. When the old classification was established about 200 clerks were affected. The heads of the departments were personally aware of the relative merits of all their clerks, and could see that the clerks were put in the proper classes. There are now about 15,000 clerks in the departmental service in Washington.

While it is true that in some bureaus a strong effort is constantly made to have the clerks divided between these classes according to their duties and efficiency, in general seniority plays a greater part than character of work. Only four of the great departments of the service claim to make promotions principally on efficiency records. The result is glaring inconsistencies in salaries. An examiner passing on claims involving hundreds of dollars may be drawing the same salary as a clerk sitting next to him who performs only routine work. Under the present system not only can a clerk draw for routine work a much higher salary than is paid to a man performing a high class of work, but clerks incapable of performing anything but routine work frequently get into the higher grades of salaries.

Four Other Grades.

The bill, besides providing supervisory grades and subclerk grades, establishes four grades of clerks corresponding largely to the present classes, but fixing a definite requirement of work and responsibility for each grade.

The number of different salary grades is largely increased, though the number of titles is reduced. The interval between salary grades are much reduced, whereas under the present system the promotions are $50 at a time in the four classes, but would call for increases which would average less than $10. With this larger number of salary grades and smaller intervals between them, promotions would be more frequent and would tend naturally to prevent stagnation.

Salaries fixed in this bill would in the aggregate amount to a lump increase in the service of about 8 per cent. The salaries of all clerical positions below $800 a year are raised to $900. New grades are created for the higher classes of clerks, and the bill would result in some increases for the clerks who are engaged in the highest classes of work. In the intermediate grades there would be a decrease in the number of decreases. All the salaries are fixed in figures which are multiples of 12 for convenience in meeting the legal requirement of dividing the annual salary into twelve installments.

EDITOR IS ARRESTED ON MURDER CHARGE

Killing of Prominent Missouri Physician Is Outcome of Old Feud.

MOREHOUSE, Mo., April 12.—C. R. Hay, editor of the Morehouse Hustler, is under arrest charged with the murder of Dr. L. W. Hart, a prominent physician, and also mayor of Morehouse, whom he shot yesterday afternoon.

The trouble between the two men dates back about a year, when Editor Hay printed an offensive article about Dr. Hart, in his newspaper. The doctor chased the editor, and they have not been on speaking terms since.

Yesterday the Hustler printed a letter from a prominent Socialist scoring the part Dr. Hart had taken in the recent election, and this resulted in the renewal of the trouble between the men. As Hart was coming out of a grocery store on Beach street yesterday afternoon, he and before anyone could interfere, had shot and killed him.

OBTAINS A DIVORCE UNDER NEVADA LAW

RENO, Nev., April 12.—Testifying that she could not get a divorce in her own State, and was compelled to come to Nevada, because the laws of New York would not allow her a separation from a husband who almost killed her by his cruelty, Mrs. Madeline Gordon Bissell has obtained her separation papers from Dr. William Bissell, a prominent physician of Buffalo, the city bacteriologist, a nephew of ex-Postmaster General Bissell, of Cleveland's Cabinet, and a prominent society man of that city. Attorney Massey, for Mrs. Bissell, severely scored the divorce laws of New York, saying that a man may beat his wife as much as he wants to and she cannot secure a separation from him.

"SPACE PEDDLER" BECOMES A FACTOR

According to D. G. Evans, of Success Magazine, the "space peddler" is rapidly becoming a factor in all lines of commercial enterprises when magazine and newspaper advertising is used for the progress and development of business. Mr. Evans made this assertion at the luncheon yesterday of the Washington Ad League.

The speaker stated that leading magazines refuse to handle advertising matter that is objectionable, or is suspected to be of a fraudulent nature.

Serious Charges Made in New York Police Court

NEW YORK, April 12.—That a rooming picture playhouse was maintained exclusively to provide a place where children could be enticed into white slavery was the allegation made in police court today.

Six men, all Italians, were arraigned in Brooklyn charged with aiding and abetting traffic in children. Warrants are out for twenty others and the police declare they have uncovered the most diabolical conspiracy against children virtue in the city's history.

Agents of the Children's Society caused the arrests. Ten little girls, ranging in age from nine to thirteen years, are held as witnesses. All told the same story. They are children of very poor parents. They are held in the rooming picture play at 122 East 10th street, near 10th Avenue.

Admission was free for the poor children, and they could get the money they wanted. The bail was $100, and the children were easily secured.

The children say they always had made escorts, however, and were left for home. Many failed to reach their homes, and soon the names were added to the big missing list of the police.

In court the agent of the society, Charles W. Wells, gave the children's names and the names of the men who were taken and held until they could be distributed. He also gave the names of the men who were taken and held until they could be distributed.

Decision Reached After Commissioners and Board Officials Confer.

Hereafter all inspectors of the various school buildings for any purpose whatsoever will be required to furnish credentials before they are permitted to make their inspection.

The decision has been reached after conference between the officials of the Board of Education and the Commissioners, and is the result of an inspection that was recently made by officials of the building department. It is said that a number of inspectors made a surprise appearance at the school buildings and that the information was not given to the building department.
